

How to prevent being RIPPED OFF

and get a quality garage door
repair at the best price

5 things you MUST do to prevent being cheated

- Demand the company's contractors license number
- Check that license number with the Contractors State Licensing Board to ensure it's valid and they're in good standing (www.cslb.ca.gov)
- Check with the Better Business Bureau for their rating and the number of complaints filed against them (www.bbb.org)
- If their address is on a major street, verify it's actually theirs. In most cases, it will prove to be a false address. These companies frequently overcharge customers, perform and charge for unnecessary repairs, do shoddy work, and install used or cheap parts. When you have a problem with their work, you may find they've disappeared.
- Demand that the price given over the phone is the guaranteed maximum in writing (If your description turns out not to be the problem and they say they need to charge you more, can you say "no thanks" and owe them nothing? Demand this in writing)
